

Canadian Welding Association Journal
Summer 2005

REFERENCES and ARTICLE

High-strength, Large-diameter Steel Pipes for Pipeline Application

By Fathi Hamad and Laurie Collins, Research & Development, IPSCO Inc.

References

- 1- Graville, B.A. Cold Cracking in Welds in HSLA Steels, Welding of HSLA (Micro-alloyed) Structural Steels, Proceeding of International Conference, American Society for Metals, Nov. 1976.
- 2- Ito, Y. and Nakanishi, M. (1976). Study on Charpy Impact Properties of Weld Metal with Submerged Arc Welding. The Sumitomo Search, No 15., pages 42-62.
- 3- Hamad, F., Kostic, M. and Bhole, S. High-Strength, High-Fracture Toughness Submerged Arc Weld for Arctic Linepipe. Welding for Challenging Environments, Conference Proceeding, 1985. Pages 315-322.

Challenges and Solutions for the Retention of Field Production Rates in High-strength Pipe

By Peter L. Nicholson, The Lincoln Electric Company

References

1. TWI: Evaluation of Low Hydrogen Processes for Pipeline Construction in High Strength Steel – PR-164-9330.
2. Elliot K. Stava: 1993. The Surface Tension Transfer Power Source, A New, Low-Spatter Arc Welding Machine. Welding Journal 72(1): 25-29.